There are pilots flying X-Wings in the Star Wars galaxy. Some, such as John D. Branon or Grizz Frix, are just bait (RIP) for Imperial TIE fighters to destroy; Others, such as Wedge Antilles or Poe Dameron, became experienced war heroes who saw action all over the galaxy. The pilots who make up this list are all X-Wing pilots in the Star Wars canon. The pilot of other ships is indicated and discussed, but they are not integrated into their rankings. Star Wars Legends pilots, including impressive pilot Corran Horn, are not included in the list, and Star Wars Legends stories don't count for canon characters like Wedge Antilles or Luke Skywalker. However, canonical sources outside the film were considered in the ranking of pilots, including books, comic books and television shows. Rogue One was not included in upcoming pilots: A Star Wars Story, but Rebel pilots will almost certainly play a role in stealing the Empire's Death Star schemes. Next up, here are the top 15 X-Wing Pilots in Star Wars Canon. 15 Jek Piggy Porkins Oh, Porkins, we hardly knew you. Jek Tono Porkins, who was called Piggy by his fellow Rebel pilots, flew as the Red Six against the first Death Star in the Battle of Yavin IV. He was killed along with rebel pilots John D. Branon and Theron Nett. What gives Porkins the upper hand over these pilots is that Porkins' T-65B X-Wing malfunctioned during the battle and, due to this failure, was able to save itself despite its specialist piloting skills. He was shot down by a turbolazer in the shield of the Death Star, which killed him instantly. Even death, Porkins did not appear to shake pig jokes made at his expense. Resistance pilots named the flight technique after him-- Porkins Belly Run, who taught new soldiers in training. It's not clear if the name is an honor, but Porkins' memory continues to live with the next generation of X-Wing pilots. 14 Biggs Darklighter Biggs Darklighter Tatooine was a childhood friend of Luke Skywalker. Darklighter grew up flying T-16 skyhoppers with Luke Skywalker through canyons on the desert planet. Unlike Luke, however, Biggs enrolled in the Imperial Academy to learn to fly. After graduating, Biggs defected and joined the Rebel League. At Tosche Station (in a scene deleted from A New Hope), Biggs explains his defection to Luke and encourages Luke to do the same. Luke looks after Biggs and takes his advice, eventually joining the Rebels and reuniting with Biggs on Yavin IV before the Death Star arrives. Darth Vader killed Biggs in the Battle of Yavin IV. Biggs greatly affected Luke Skywalker's development as a pilot, and Luke continued to remember his friend after the war. Biggs had more formal training than the other pilots, and if Vader hadn't taken him down, he could have continued to fly for the Rebel League for a while. 13 Wes Janson is a member of wes Janson Rogue Squadron A T-47 airspeeder (or snowspeeder) flew as Wedge Antilles's artillery at the Battle of Hoth. Together, they used harpoons and towing cables to attack an AT-AT walker attacking Echo Base. Janson is an excellent shot, but, as in the Anteller cockpit, Janson's pilot skills are not on display during battle. Janson, along with other pilots Antilles and Derek Klivian, then flew an X-Wing as Hoth helped accompany the fleeing Rebel forces. The last Rebel transport ship to leave Echo Base successfully protected bright hope from the Imperial attack. Janson's fate is unknown after the Battle of Hoth. 12 R2-D2 Astromech units are generally not considered pilot themselves, but there is no X-Wing solo by pilot Luke Skywalker at the R2-D2 Battle of Hoth. Luke Hoth changes course to go to Dagobah below, R2-D2 also offers the pilot. It is possible that the R2-D2 alone flew an X-Wing. While the R2-D2 may seem like a completely good pilo- - and it certainly saw its share flying over the movies - he doesn't have some of the same solo pilot credentials as the other pilots on this list. Given that Astromechs regularly fly their X-Wings and human pilots are a more expensive option, it is safe to assume that droid abilities are not equivalent to human pilots in combat situations. Perhaps in the future, R2-D2 (or any other droid) may prove us wrong, but for the moment, the R2-D2 pilot capabilities are more than safe from a failure if the human pilot is unavailable. 11 Ello Asty Ello Asty is an Abednedo pilot who served as a Resistance pilot under General Leia. Asty was actually a member of the Republic's precision air team, including performances in air shows and leading patrols. Asty was a skilled pilot, capable of impressive acrobatics and flying solo missions. Asty then chose to fly with RESISTANCE as the pilot of a T-70 X-wing fighter. He was a member of the Blue Fleet when he flew with Poe Dameron in the attack at Starkiller Base. However, Ello Asty was shot dead during the attack. Ello Asty's name is a possible reference to director J. J. Abrams' television series LOST (his name is the phonetic pronunciation of each letter). Abrams also made his name as a reference to the beastie Boys album Hello Nasty. In Asty's helmet in Aurebesh, Born to Ill, referring to Licensed to Ille, another Beastie Boys album, says: 10 Garven Dreis Garven Dave Dreis was selected from all pilots in the Rebel Alliance to lead redron squad as Red Leader when they flew in the first Death Star at the Battle of Yavin IV. If the mission against the Death Star failed, the Rebel League would end and all individuals on Yavin IV would die. Given The nature of the mission and the importance of victory for the Rebel Alliance, Dreis must be a senior and experienced pilot to have been chosen to lead the Death Star attack as the Red Leader. In A New Hope (1977), Dreis is shown to be an excellent pilot and survives many attacks until he is killed by Darth Vader, like biggs darklighter. It's impossible to know that Dreis didn't survive this mission if he hadn't flown against Vader. 9 Nien Nunb Nien Nunb is a Sullustan smuggler and pilot who first joined the Rebel Alliance during the Galactic Civil War. Evaan helped Verlaine smuggle the Alderaanians out of his home country and later assisted Lando Calrissian as co-pilot of the Millennium Falcon at the Battle of Endor. But by the time of The Force Awakens (2015), Nien Nunb flew as an X-Wing pilot. As a Lieutenant in the Star hunter Corps under General Leia, Nien Nunb flew with Poe Dameron as part of the successful attack on Starkiller Base. An experienced veteran among the so-called victory children (conceived around the Battle of Endor), Nien Nunb organized his own as a pilot. Nien Nunb is not primarily known as an X-Wing pilot, but he is one of seven pilots who survived the attack on Starkiller Base. He can continue to fly against First Order in the upcoming Star Wars movies. 8 Derek Hobbie Klivian Derek Klivian, known to other pilots as Hobbie, is actually a human X-Wing pilot trained as an Imperial pilot. Klivian trained at Skystrike Academy with Wedge Antilles and their friends Rake Gahree. After meeting Rebel Sabine Wren, the three friends decided to defect and join the Rebel Alliance. Rake, unfortunately, was killed in the process, but Derek and Wedge escaped and the Rebels joined in. Klivian would then return to the Imperial Academy and help hire Biggs Darklighter to join the Rebel Alliance. At the Battle of Hoth, Hobbie shared the same snow speed as Luke Skywalker but had to be thrown off the ship. He flew an X-Wing as one of the escorts of rebel ships fleeing the planet Hoth. Hobbie had extensive training as a pilot, which served him well in combat scenarios; He is clearly an experienced pilot who continues to help rebel against the Empire. 7 Snap Wexley Temmin Snap Wexley is the son of a Rebel pilot, his mother, Norra Wexley, who became a skilled pilot in his own right and flew a Y-Wing at the Battle of Endor. As a teenager, he flew in the Battle of Jakku with the Snap Rebel Alliance and later became a pilot of the Resistance Starfighter Corps. Snap, a renowned reconnaissance pilot, investigated First Order as a threat and helped discover vital information about the secret and deadly Starkiller Base. Snap Wexley first appeared in the novel Aftermath, but later The Force Awakens (played by Greg Grunberg) Snap Wexley was a captain in the Blue Fleet when Starkiller Base was attacked and destroyed. Along with other pilots Ello Asty, Nien Nunb, Jessika Pava and Poe Dameron, he helped carried out an effective attack on the First Order super weapon. 6 Joph Seastriker Joph Seastriker became a lieutenant of the precision air team flying at air shows for the New Republic. He later joined the Resistance as an X-Wing pilot, escorting General Leia on the Mirrorbright ship and accompanying him on dangerous missions in the galaxy. Seastriker was known for flying his X-Wing into tight spaces and performing risky maneuvers. His lack of interest in flight safety regulations caused general distress, while his specialist piloting means he saved him and saved the day many times. Joph Seastriker was extremely loyal to General Leia and the Cause of the Resistance. He was also a confident pilot who was able to repair his own ship with limited time and supplies. Seastriker adventures were discussed only in Bloodline, but the novel shows his extraordinary experience and abilities. I hope Seastriker will return to the Resistance in more books and films. 5 Jessika Pava Jessika Pava is a Resistance pilot who flew a T-70 X-Wing against the forces of the First Order. As a member of the Starfighter Corps, he flew missions, including an attack at Pava Starkiller Base, with a number of Poe Dameron's. He pointed to the Blue Three during the attack. Pava was also known to his fellow pilots as Jess and Testor. He was inspired to become a starship pilot after growing up hearing stories about brave and talented Rebel pilots Wedge Antilles and Luke Skywalker. After joining the Resistance, he spoke to Threepio about Luke and told personal stories about his past adventures with Luke Skywalker and his victories over the Galactic Empire. Pava is an incredibly talented pilot, as well as the Poe Dameron comic book and film Force Awakens. In the second, it covers Poe in the latest attack on Starkiller Base and ensures its destruction. Thane Kyrell Kyrell, one of the main characters in the novel 4 Canonical Lost Stars, left his family and went to the Royal Imperial Academy at a young age. Tie Fighters for the Galactic Empire were on the elite road to fly, but after learning about the slave trade supported by the Empire and the destruction of the planet Alderaan by the Death Star, he began to doubt the causes of the Empire. Like Biggs Darklighter, Thane Kyrell joined the ranks of famous pilots such as Luke Skywalker and Wedge Antiles, choosing to defect and become a member of the Rebel Alliance. Trading his TIE Fighter for an X-Wing, he flew against his former friends and ex-lover Ciena Ree as a member of the Corona Squadron at the Battle of Hoth, the Battle of Endor and the Battle of Jakku. The anteller was impressed by Kyrell's piloting ability and said Kyrell It's like a pilot talking about the ability of other pilots to out-fly. 3 Kama Antellar Wedge Antellar is a Corellian pilot who flew with the Rebel Alliance against the Galactic Empire. The Anteller is the only pilot to fly against both Death Stars, who survived the deadly massacre of the first Death Star and helped destroy the second Death Star (along with the Millennium Falcon). Wedge was originally trained by imperial forces to fly TIE fighters as a student at Skystrike Academy. After meeting Sabine Wren, he chose to defect to the Rebel League. The Antellar is one of only two pilots from the original Red Fleet who, along with Luke Skywalker, survived the attack on the first Death Star. He also flew in the Battle of Hoth, opened a reconnaissance mission against Imperial forces on the planet Akiva, and as leader of the Phantom Squadron helped liberate kashyk, planet Wookiee. His service record with the Rebel Alliance is unmatched and has helped inspire the next generation of Resistance pilots. 2 Poe Dameron Poe Dameron was born on the planet Endor, the son of a Rebel Alliance soldier and a pilot. When he was six, Poe learned that he had been taught to fly an A-Wing by his mother. He served as a pilot as part of the Resistance and flew a special T-70 X-Wing with a dark hull called Black One. In a dogging above Maz Castle in Takodana, Dameron showed how he was able to combine acrobatic maneuvers with precise lethal effect. He also led the attack on the Starkiller base and successfully fired the final blow to the First Order super weapon. A skilled and effortless pilot with decades of experience, Dameron is confident he will be an asset to the Resistance in the years to come. Defending Wedge Antilles, Poe Dameron captures many qualities in the Star Wars Legends X-Wing series antilles and its other pilots, and dameron antilles seems to be his spiritual successor. 1 Luke Skywalker Luke Skywalker grew up flying T-16 skyhoppers on the desert planet tatooine. While his friend Biggs wanted to follow darklighter to the Imperial Academy to learn how to fly with TIE Fighters and see the galaxy, Luke took a different tying path. Even as a young and relatively inexperienced pilot, Luke was confident of his first mission against Death Star. Luke's uncanny ability with the Force only helped him successfully survive the attack on the first Death Star -- one of two pilots who succeeded -- but also allowed him to successfully maneuver the trench and destroy the Death Star by shooting into the exhaust hole. Of course, Luke's connection to the Force means he can achieve successes that other pilots can't, but from now on, he's the only canonical power user flying x-wing. While this may give him an unfair advantage over Wedge Antilles and Poe Dameron, it is still an advantage. --- who do you think is the best X-Wing pilot to fly in a Star Wars canon?
